

Categorical importances are summed across their one-hot columns.
These training-based scores do not establish causal effects or independent contributions.